CAMERON SCHOOLS TO GET SOUND SYSTEM

A grant of federal funds has made it possible for an improvement project of $12,400 in the Cameron school system.

Superintendent E. A. Perrin said that the federal government had made an outright grant of $5,580 and to this amount the school board will add sufficient funds by the use of labor and complete the project.

The improvement included a new roof for the Ada Henderson school building, but chief among the improvements is a sound system providing communcation from one building to another and in all the class rooms direct from the office of the superintendent. Other improvements include sanitary equipment at the Yoe High School and blaechers for the north side of the football field.

The sound system providing this means of communication will be a time saver and will put the schools in the class with the best equipped systems in the state. The seats on the north side of the football field will give the Yoemen bowl seating capacity for all occasions. These improvements mark another significant advance in Cameron schools.

McDonald Slugs Federal Farm Czar

Texas Agricultural Commissioner J. E. McDonald renewed his attack on Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace here Tuesday, characterizing the Cabinet member as an "agricultural theorist, hell hent on the domination of agriculture and regimentation of the farmers of this country."

He charged: "Secretary Wallace is more interested in forming a political machine than developing a farm program giving greatest benefit to the farmer.

"He knows nothing about conditions of practical agriculture or the marketing of products. After five years of his regime, the purchasing power of the farmer is at its lowest ebb in history, conclusive proof of his inability to place agriculture in a stable position.

"At the rate foreign countries are increasing their production of cotton, America will have no place in the world market within four years. We will be asking Congress to put up tariff barriers to protect the farmers' own mill business in Texas."

Mr. McDonald's domestic allotment plan would allot each farmer a share of the domestic market, and guarantee price for cotton delivered to this market on a parity with industrial incomes.

The Convention

By REESE TURNER
Democratic Nominee for the Legislature

There are many things that the State Democratic Convention accomplishes and many things that it fails to accomplish; but one of the finest things that can be said in its favor is that it gives legislators an opportunity to sound one another out on current issues, and estimate the degree of support that they can expect on the various planks of their respective platforms.

From the very start of the recent convention in Beaumont there was no question about how a majority of the representatives stood on the main issues of the Texas primaries, namely, old age pensions, and government economy. The indications are that the line will be almost solid in the House for a liberal pension law and drastic measrues to reduce the cost of operating the state government. This is all very encouraging to me because it makes a good opening through which I can introduce my government reorganization program which I talked about so much during my campaign and which I believe will be of such tremendous and lasting value to the people of

In large measure the success of the community fair is due to the efforts of M. V. Hallman, teacher of vocational agriculture in the Sharp school and active in better farm work in Milam County.

Dorothy Lamour In "Jungle Love" at Milam Sunday

An alluring and mysterious island in the South Seas, filmed for the first time in breath-taking Technicolor, forms the background for the new Ray Milland-Dorothy Lamour romance, "Her Jugle Love," which Paramount will present next Sunday and Monday at the Milam Theatre.

In the same spirit as the spectacular " Jungle Princess" of a season ago, "Her Jungle Love" tells a romantic story of a handsome young aviator who is cast away on a deserted South Seas island only to discover that its only other inhabitant is a lovely girl who has never before laid eyes on a white man.

Miss Lamour, fresh from her success, in "Hurricane,' will be seen as the native girl whose love for the young aviator runs afoul of a half-crazed native potentate, played by J. Carrol Naish, veteran of mysterious Oriental roles. She and Milland have to fight for their love, and later for their very lives, against furious native tribes who know white men only as "devils" come to take their island away from them. They escape only through the intercession of one of those miracles which make the South Pacific deserve its reputation for mystery and intrigue.

The romantic story of "Her Jungle Love" is paced by the comedy of Lynne Overman, who wise-cracked his way through "Night Club Scandal" and "Big Broadcast of 1938" and now appears as an aviator marooned on the ilsand with Milland. Another member of the "Big Broadcast" cast to reappear in this picture is Dorothy Howe, a comparative newcomer to Hollywood, who now plays a sophisticated English girl who fights with the jungle princess for the love of the castaway aviator.

"Her Jungle Love" was directed by George Ruehainband, who will be remembered by moveigoers as the man who brought "Hotel Haywire" and "Thrill of a Lifetime" to the screen.

Notice!!

TO

Bicycle Riders and Others

This is to give notice that bicycle riders must immediately discontinue the practice of riding to fires or following the fire trucks and firemen. The City Council has instructed me in the interest of safety to the small boys who ride bicycles to stop the practice. After this warning, if it becomes necessary to take bicycles and lock them up to prohibit this dangerous riding, please do not blame the city marshal.

We have been fortunate thus far that no boy has been killed riding in the path of the fire trucks. It will be my duty to take these bicycles and lock them up if the boys continue this dangerous practice. This warning also applies to civillians who get in their cars and race to fires and interefere with the work of the firemen.

Many times in the past these warnings have been issued. Due to the increased number of bicycle riders, these regulations will be strictly enforced. The marshal can not be blamed for a strict policy in this matter in the future. Human life is at stake and the work of the firemen is too important to tolerate interference in any manner.

Texas Fans May Purchase Football Tickets by Wire

Arrangements have been completed with athletic authorities of Austin, University of Texas so that alumni and fans in other cities may obtain through the local telegraph office tickets for all football games this fall, so long as unsold tickets are available," Mrs. Lowe, Western Union Manager here announced today.

"The Local telegraph office will accept orders for tickets for games at Texas University, wire the money to Austin, Texas, and have the tickets held at the gate or the telegraph office there as the purchaser may prefer, pending arrival of the buyer on the day of the game," Mrs. Lowe, Said.

"This arrangement makes it possible for Cameron people to obtain reserved seats for football games with a minimum of difficulty and expense."

$70 is a conservative estimate of the value of food Mrs. Alver Gravender of the Ad Hall Home Demonstration Club has preserved the first 8 months of this year. At the time of her report she had 454 containers and expected to have 500 by the end of the summer season.

The cash value is only one consideration. She has a variety of foods to insure nutritious and palatable meals. She has 167 pints of fruits and fruit juices of 5 varieties; 113 pints of vegetables of 6 varieties; and 100 pints of tomatoes and tomato juice. Jelly, preserves and pickles comprise the remainder of the preserved food. When cool weather arrives she will can a beef.

Her vegetables were raised in her own garden. She has sandy soil which was fertilized with chicken house manure and well worked.

This is about COACH WOOD

Regulation of Texas High School football rests squarely with the Interscholastic league and its dirctor of athletics, R. J. Kidd, successor to the late Roy B. Henderson, the man who fostered the football infant in Texas and guided the game to the powerful place it holds in the state today.

Evils Crop Up In Development

Greater interest in the sport in the last few years has caused everything connected with it to be correspondingly stepped up. Stadiums are larger, more modern, more numerous; the high type coach has been developed, his pay increased, and all in all the game has become the biggest business a high school can operate outside of academies.

But now there crops up certain practicies that are considered unwise. These have come along with development of the system. Undersirable practuces should be curbed, and there is every indication the league will step in and prohibit certain ones now in operation.

The first regulation to be laid down probably will be one to prohibit the strat of fall training in all schools until Sept. 1. Each year the need for such a rule becomes more apparent. A coach who seeks an advantage over his rivals, or perhaps nothing more than an even start with them by developing his experienced material early and bringing it more nearly up to par, will call first practice August 10.

In self-defense his rivals adopt the same date, thus nullifying the first month's advantage—if any. So, likely as not, the first decides to accomplish his purpose by calling his squad August 1. There were, last year as well as this, several teams in the state taking unit football training August 1.

Wood Is Strong Advocate

Coach L. C. Wood of Cameron, who made a hit as a coach with the West Texas grid fans when he tutored an East Texas team that stole the show in the first annual Oil Bowl game here last week, believes the clamps should be applied to the league at once.

As President of the Texas High School Coaching association last year he polled 1,252 coaches and superintendents on the question, and received a 3 to 1 vote favoring the adoption of Sept. 1, as the date for the start of fall practice.

The mentors also favored a plan for limiting the length of spring training, instead of leaving the question to the discretion—and in some instances to the mercy—of individaul coaches. Coach Wood favored three weeks light work in the spring.

Coach Wood is a confirmed believer in the plan he advocates, and practices what he preaches. When he was here training the East all-stars, every school in the district was training. His Cameron squad was idle, and the idleness has nothing to do with the mentor's absence. It was simply that the time for practice had not arrived.

Cameron Always Starts Late

Wood starts his boys late, and lays his plans for a strong finish, (it will be recalled that the East was one day late in starting here for the Oil Bowl game, although in this instance a mixup in instructions was the cause of the lateness, and not that Wood deliberately wished a delayed start. However, he did not appear greatly perturbed about it, and the Oil Bowl game gave no indication of the delay.)

The Cameron Mentor five years ahead of the average coach in his methods, says he sees no advantage in dissipating of player's energy on the practice field in the early stage, and then turning up near the end of the season with a sluggish, worn-out team, tired of the game and ready to rest. Like a sharp knife, a team's edge can be dulled through too much service. Wood made the result of his survey available to the Interscholastic League, with the recommendation that action be taken as soon as regularded practicable. That would be before next spring. Adoption will be another break for coaches and players.—Wichita Falls Times.

Mrs. J. A. McKinney,
Jones Prairie Home Dem. Club.
Cameron, Texas, Rt. 2.

"A sink connected with a plentiful supply of hot and cold running water with a sanitary drainage system probably saves more labor than any one piece of equipment that can be installed in the kitchen," said Miss Porter, County Home Demonstration Agent, in discussing "Water In and Out of the Kitchen" at a meeting of the Jones Prairie Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. S. M. Harrell, September 13th.

There was a time that running water into the house was considered a luxury but it is no longer considered as such. It takes its rightful place along side the cooking stove and the refrigerator in importance.

We should make sure the water that runs into our house is free from contamination since many typhoid epidemics in rural communities can be traced to bacteria infected water. We can have our water tested free of charge and if bacteria is found it can be purified by the use of 1 teaspoon of chlorid of lime to 500 gallons of water.

In closing her discussion of "Water In and Out of the Kitchen" Miss Porter sounded the death knell of the unnecessary, unsightly and unsanitary garbage pail, better known as the slop bucket.

Those attending this meeting were 10 members and 4 guests, Mrs. Graves of Wichita Falls, Mrs. Lester Hugues of Cameron and Mrs. Young and Miss Peggy Yager.

Other members are Mrs. Lucille Seaton, Mrs. Bettie Odam, Mrs. Mary Heitmann, Mrs. Bernice Peed and Mrs. Ida Aschenbeck.

Back to School

Boys and girls everywhere are starting back to school. Yet, a vast number of boys and girls will not be able to heed that urge and it won't be because they don't want to go on to school and complete their education. It will be simply because there s not enough money in the family to pay tuition, buy books and in some cases by the necessary clothes. Some of these may make a success in the business world but for the greater majority it will mean they will be deprived of the increased earning capacity which completed education guarantees to young men and women.

The Great Southern Life Insurance Company has an Educational Insurance Plan and here is what it does:

(1) Starting when your child is young it accumulates—from a small sum you can easily spare a substantial part of the money needed to put them through college by the time they are ready to go.

(2) At retirement time if you have not needed the cash reserve for college expenses it adds to your own retirement fund or income.

(3) If you don't live the plan provides for the child a small monthly income during grade school years, larger income for high school and still larger income for college.

(4) It makes certain that mother will have money if and when needed to see the child through school and college.

(5) Its benefits are available to you and yours in whatever amounts you feel you can afford.

On Sunday, September 18th, the home of Vernon Russell, on String Prairie about fifteen miles northeast of Cameron, was the scene of celebration of the 84th birthday of his brother, Albert Russell. Tables were spread under the beautiful oak trees in front of the residence and a tempting array of barbecued and baked meats with bread, pickles, salads, cakes, pies of many kinds, iced tea and hot coffee were placed thereon by a group of neighboring ladies under the capable direction of Miss Lillian Russell, who presides over her father's home. The table was centered with a beautiful birthday cake which was fittingly decorated and adorned by 84 blue candles symbolizing the years of her uncle's life. Mr. Russell was born in Lawrence County, Mississippi in 1854, and came to Texas in 1875. He now makes his home with his brother, who will be seventy-six years of age in October. With the execption of the eye trouble of the aged honoree, he and his brother host bear their years easily and one would take them for much younger men. Sunday also marked the sixth birthday of a little grandson of Mr. Vernon Russell and his decorated birthday cake was also upon the long table. Many young friends wished him "Happy Birthday," All ages were represented in the group of friends and neighbors who were present Sunday to enjoy the feast and to extend felicitations.

Milam County and of Texas. I am opposed to any increase in taxes except where it is absolutely unavoidable; and I firmly believe that the greater part of the money necessary to finance a liberal pension law can be raised through a program of government reorganization together with the natural increase in revenue which will result from industrialization of Texas.

Speaking of industrialization—it was a bit more difficult on this question to find out just how fellow legislators felt. Perhaps most of them had been too busy with the main issue of pensions to give it much thought. However, I believe that in as much as the nominee for governor has pledged himself to a business administration, the members of the legislature will finally take up the banner a hundred per cent. If they will, valuable ends can be accomplished. I am very enthusiastic about this industialization program. Wouldn't a factory look good right in the middle of Milam County? Well, it is something to hope for and work for.

Here is something the school people will be interested in: In several informal meetings I brought up the question of school appropriations Most of the legislators agreed that ourteachers are getting too big a slice taken out of their pay every year in the form of discounts and service charges. Most of them agreed, also, that school bus drivers and certain other school employees are not being paid living wages. And most of them expressed a willingness to help me in any attempt that I make to solve these and other problems of our school system.

The platform that was adopted by the convention embodies all of these provisions: Old age pensions, industrialization of Texas, government economy, and development of education, together with pledges of cooperation between the legislature and executive departments of our state government, and endorsement of the national administration.

Generally speaking the wording of the platform is commendable. However, I do believe that it should have been a little more definite in regard to pensions. The pension plank reads as follows:

"The legislature should make immediate and adequate provisions for the social security program and immediately provide for the payment of the maxmium amount of pensions and old-age assistance under the Constitution of this state and under the Constitution of the United States."

I believe that the platform should have specified the amount to be given as $30 in order to conform with campaign promises. It should also have stated definitely whether or not the pension is to be based on need. An attempt was made to adopt a new section providing for $30 a month pension; but this was defeated.

However, regardless of the vagueness of the pension plank as adopted by the convention, I believe, as I stated before, that a majority of the legislators are in favor of a liberal pension law, and that a great deal will be accomplished in this connection by the next legislature.

Gold Diggers in Paris Big Musical Hit at Cameron Thursday and Friday

The only time in her life that Rosemary Lane really felt insulted was when Fred Waring said to her: "The trouble with you, Rosemary, is that you're so darned healthy."

She's a study in contradictions this "middle Lane" girl. From her older sister, Lola, she has inherited the ability to look aristocratic, reserved and even supercilious on the screen. From the younger sister, Priscilla—known at home as "Pat"—she has acquired an ability to ride, swim, be a hail-fellow-well-met to all of Pat's gang. From somewhere on her own she has developed a well trained and excellently modulated voice which has won widespread acclaim on the radio.

And yet, as Waring remarked, she is so darned healthy.

Rosemary Lane has dark chestnut hair flecked with tawny tints which the Techicolor camera catches to excellent advantage. It is naturally curley and has never been subjected to any treatment other than soap and warm water. She has also the plentiful freckles of the outdoor girl who woos the sun in April and it's afraid of a swim on Christmas Day. When she was a youngster, she was nicknamed "Raspberry," and she hasn't entirely outgrown it even to day

Priscilla says that Rosemary always looks as though she had just come from a polo game. And perhaps that is not a bad one-sentence description of Rosemary.

She has the look and the mental attitude of the girl who is a good sport and who has grown up as one of boys. She is straight-forward. and she looks it. Perhaps that is what Waring meant when he said she was "too darned healthy."

Perhaps he meant that she was one of those girls who are best described as "nice." The sort that men pick out to marry. But any man who takes Rosemary dancing is in for the treat of his life. She is the ballroom dancer of the three sisters and although Priscilla can perhaps excel her at 'tap,' Rosemary can swing a mean buck and wing when she feels in the mood.

Ray Enright, who directed her in "Gold Diggers in Paris," the Warner Bros. musical opening next Thursday and Friday at the Cameron Theatre, in which she plays opposite Rudy Valle, says that she is an excellent actress, rarely blows up in her lines, and can be photographed from nearly every angle. She has an excellent figure and carries herself with the grace of a trained dancer.

She has an inward reserve that is always evident. The fellow who would try to "get fresh" with Rosemary Lane would probably be looped off so quickly that he would never quite know what happened. She has that gifted capacity for keeping people in their places without their ever quite knowing how they were put there.

It is a valuable ability in a little girl who intends to go a long way in picture and Rosemary Lane today is considered to be one of the best bets for picture stardom on the Warner Bros. lot. She has the gift of exciting admiration from other women without jealousy, and, best of all, she creates for herself on the screen a characterization that makes the picture-going male think—"here's a girl that it would be fun to know very well indeed."

And if that is being "too healthy," Mr. Waring, Hollywood can do with a lot more of healthy girls who are just like our Rosemary Lane.

The Cameron Herald

Motion Picture Cooking School

The Herald has scored again!

This newspaper has just been successful in securing the new Motion Picture Cooking School, "Star in My Kitchen," which will be presented at the Cameron on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday October 26, 27 and 28.

Mark the days on your calendar because every woman and man in the community is hereby extended a cordial invitation to see, absolutely free, this fascinating picture which weaves helpful, intelliegtnt lessons on cooking and home making into a humorous and romantic plot.

The Motion Picture Cooking School is a brand new idea. First conceived last year, it has met with acclaim from women throughout the country, who like the happy combination of sparkling entertainment and close-up cooking instruction. Seats in the back row are as good as those in the front row—the motion picture permits everyone to hear and see every trick in frosting a cake, making a pie, or cooking bananas.

"Star in My Kitchen" was produced in Hollywood, and the audience will recognize many of the rising young actors and actresses who take part in it. Women young and old will appreciate the humanness of the romantic story, in which home problems are approached from an entirely new angle.

The Motion Picture Cooking School has graduated beyond the demonstration course in the wide variety of household equipment assebled in clear view of the audience. All of the practical equipment is seen in active use, and because "seeing is believing," the audience will soon learn that pies and cakes and salads can made them "stars in their kitchens."

Experienced house keepers will thrill to the adventures of the young Dedee Abot, who suddenly finds herself with a large home to manage and several mouths to feed—as well as a handsome young movie actor to impress.

What happens when she tries to make a fluffy lemon meringue pie or a marshallow chocolate cake? What happens when the "man of the hour" drops in for dinner?

To unravel the mystery in advance would be to rob this clever tale of its novel approach. However, the audience is due to share in a rollicking good story and to learn much about home-making at the same time.

Every listener will find a harvest of practical ideas among the suggestions for more efficient homemaking, covering such daily problems as laundry, refrigeration, up-to-date entertaining, beauty secrets, news of modernized home equipment and tips on making these mechanical servants wield the highest degree of usefulness.

It will be a real cooking class, just as though the model kitchens were right on the stage, and all of the popular features of the old-type cooking school are retained: free receipe sheets, the atmosphere of congenial informality, the wise counsel, the hints on clever short-cuts, and the distribution of daily gifts and real surprises.

Accept the invitation of the Herald and plan to join your neighbors in the Cameron Theatre on October 19, 20 and 21, 1938.

Comedy Drama is Bill at Cameron Sunday and Monday

With all America made "movie boner" conscious through the spotlight placed on them by columnists, studios are exerting every effort to prevent errors in their pictures. An example of this is offered by the care taken in the filming of "Three Loves Has Nancy," coming attraction at the Cameron Theatre Sunday.

One of the sequences called for a display of magazines of every description. In order to obviate any chance of mistake, Tony Ordoqui, property man for the picture, contacted the largest news agencies and made arrangements to get the latest magazines before they were mailed. In this way the covers and story material advertised on the covers were timely when the picture was released.

Director Richard Thorpe took care that none of the actors displayed jewelry or monograms which would present initials different from those they bore in the picture. Only once was an error narrowly averted. Franchot Tone had discarded his monogrammed shirts, his cuff links and his tie pin, but in one scene he was supposed to reach in his pocket for money. In rehearsal, Thorpe noted that his money was held in a clip which bore the initials, F. T. Since he plays the part of Robert Hanson in the picture, the clip had to be discarded.

Robert Montgomery, as a novelist, has to autograph books for one scene. The property department, to avoid a "boner," bought 500 copies of "Murder at Malibu," then had the jackets made bearing the name of the book which Montgomery was supposed to have written in the picture.

Extreme care was taken in preparing the scene where a small-town wedding was to take place. An old-fashioned Bible, furniture of the type to be found in homes in the South, decorations used for these weddings, everything that was proper and nothing that was out of place was used for the scene. This set was carefully checked and an investigator was sent to the South to ferret out all possible information.

Before the picture started, Director Thorpe gathered the entire cast and the members of the company together, asking them to co-operate with him in searching out small errors which might be the means of provoking a "boner' letter from a fan.

Thorpe was still dissatisfied. He had outsiders check the picture in a studio projection room and invited fans to write in any "boner" they might find on cards provided at sneak previews. It is his ambition to make a "boner-less" film.

His Life Story

Reproduced from

The Dallas News

The three or four years I spent in Anthony saw a number of changes in my old home near Arlington. My sister Effie had married before I left there. Dad Baker's three daughters were growing up, as was my own sister, Ethel O'Daniel. Dad's daughters were Clara, now Mrs. Will Simms of Arlington; Bertha, now Mrs. Frank Reynolds of Alpena, Ark., and Alice, now Mrs. Lon Sartain of Arlington.

Dad Baker was getting older himself. After seventeen years as a tenant he found he was no richer than the day he started in. In fact, as I have said, he was actually loser by some $5,000. So he and the Crabbs familiy decided to call it quits as tenant and landlord. There was no row or disagreement. But Dad was deterimined to have a farm of his own to spent the rest of his days on, and he managed to get hold of an eigthy acre place that ran up to the edge of Arlington.

The farm that mother and Dad moved to about 1912 was not clear of debt. They had to give a small mortgage, although, as I remember it, the Crabbs had helped him with a part of the purchase price in part settlement of their long account. Mother thought she could earn enough with her chickens and other produce around the farm to clear the rest.

His Mother Is Stricken

But mother suffered a paralytic stroke soon after she and Dad moved from the Crabbs' ranch. It was not bad enough to keep her in the bed all the time, but even after that she couldn't get around easily, and the doctor made her take life as easy as she could be persuaded to do. All of us children did what we could in the way of sending money home.

The place where mother and Dad Baker lived was just a simple frame one story house, but they had flowers and vines ghowing around it. It looked migthy pretty. The house is there today, but the place doesn't look much like it used to. My mother was happy there in her own home. There she lived until her death in 1920.

Dad and mother almost lost that place while I was still in Anthony They got behind with the mortgage, and it looked like they would have to let it go. When I heard aboot it I went to the Anthony Building & Loan Association—where I had transferred all my savings—and drew out the whole amount, $354.03. I sent the check home. It was enough to keep the little farm from going under the hammer.

Banker Miller sent for me. I hadn't told him about this sudden need for my money. When I explained what I was doing he understood and approved, saying there was no greater way to carry out the old commandment about honoring thy father and mother than by helping them in their need. He also seemed satisfied that I had learned the habit of thrift and saving. He knew I would keep it up and some day I would have a business of my own.

Approves Home Ownesrhip

Dad Baker's experience with ten ant farming and ranching has always stayed with me. Of course I think farm and home ownership is always better than farm tenantry.

I think we should do everything as a people to help the tenant farmer, particularly those farmers who are able and willing to own their own places. People take more interest in their own places, and it develops the country much faster.

When I say something should be dooe to encourage farm ownership I don't mean we should regiment farming. But those families that are suited to the land and really want to make a living on it should be given every encouragement.

The best way to put new life into farming is to make the farm and the ranch profitable. Farming is the natural life, and if the handicaps and hardships I knew as a boy are removed it will attract many thousands back who have drifted into the towns and cities. As a State we want to bring many new industries into Texas and develop the many fine factories and lines already established here, This program will create greater wealth for all classes, so that the farmer will benefit directly through the greatly enlarged consuming power of all the people. More prosperous farmers, then, will be able to buy more of the products of factories and stores.

Diversified Farming

Diversified farming is one of the great objectives. By establishment of canning factories we can help bring about more freedom from the single crop. Where a man can have a nice little farm home and raise practically everything he needs in the way of food and have a surplus to sell, farming is a good life.

When the people of Texas are taught by advertising to demand food stuffs canned in Texas we will create a profitable market for the farm surplus and encourage the widespread investment of money in canning plants all over the State.

Farming today is the ideal life, and all we have to do is to make the 6,000,000 of Texas conscious of its possibilities. Yet many folks right now go down to the stores and buy beef canned as far away as Argentine. The Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College is doing a lot of good, constructive work that many folks in Texas hardly know about. People should know more about the improvements in poultry feeding and raising worked out by the experts at A & M. The college, through its extension service, has developed a special variety of sweet corn that can be grown and canned any place in Texas where the soil is good and the grower will take care of it.

Farm Improvements Suggested

In the last ten years I have come to know at first hand every port of Texas. You could take me out blindfolded and turn me loose and I could soon tell you where I was. In that short time I have seen a great improvement in Texas farms and farm conditions. But we need to carry out many more improvements.

There are a world of things that can be done for the agricultural industry of Texas, and we should all work together in a business like and constructive way to do that. We intend to make all of our improvements on a soild foundation. What a wonderful State Texas can be when it is dotted from one end to the other with small farms and fine homes.

But this is getting ahead of my story. I was still an employee of the Kramer Milling Company at Anthony, Kan., in 1912, when a new business opportunity was offered.

A Greater Opportunity

In the latter part of 1912 T. J. Holdridge, owner of the Kingman Milling Company in Kingman, Ka.., and his associates bought up five other mills in that State, including the Kramer mill in Anthony. The new firm was called the Kansas Flour Mills Company, with headquarters in Wichita.

Soon afterward the new company made me sales manager of the Kingman Mills. This was a 1,200-barrel mill and considerably larger than the Anthony plant. It was a good promotion for me and I took the job, although I was sorry to leave my friends in Anthony.

Kingman had around 2,500 people in those days. It is located in the next county to Reno, about as far southwest of Arlington, my old home, at Hutchinson is to the northeast. Kingman was much like its neighboring towns—all the places I had known since coming to Kansas.

In Kingman I roomed and boarded at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Lippencott. This was a comfortable, old-fashioned home at 256 Avenue F. East. I was fortunate here, as with the Hilts in Anthony, in finding a real home atmosphere, and soon I had met a new circle of friends.

Young Salesman Goes Courting

We had a lot of fun, as young people always do, back there in Kingman. I used to sing some in those days, and many a Sunday afternoon and evening group of us would gang aroud the piano and sing the popular songs of the day and the old-time ballads. There were always picnics, socials, skating parties in the winter and the moving picture show had grown important enough to be called the Orpheum Theatre, where parties were given from time to time.

But the real luck break of my life occurred on a trip back to Hutchinson about this time. Because it was on one of these trips that I met the young lady who was to become my wife, Merle Butcher. I was introduced to her by my old school chum from Arlington, Ben Wyman. She had been a student in the Salt City Business College. She was born in Granada, Colo., but had been reared in Syracuse, Kan.

My future wife had finished the college course and had a job in Hutchinson when I started courting her. She was secretary at the time to C. W. Taylor, then Attorney General of Kansas, in his Huthchinson law office. Later she was employed as secretary to the manager of the International Harvester Company in the same town. Once I met her, I sort of lost interest in the gay social whirl of Kingman and tried to get up to Hutchinson just as often as I could. I wanted to get married right now, but she was a very popular young lady and was having a good time, and I had to plan and carry out a real sales campaign to get her to see it my way finally. And finally she did say yes, but we agreed to postpone the wedding for awhile. I was not earning much more than at Anthony, I had my parents to help support, and she wanted to see if I was going to make good on my boast about having a business of my own.

About Pat, Mike and Molly

After my wife said she would have me I told her something I had always planned about my family. I said I hoped to have two sons and a little girl—and they were to be named Pat, Mike and Molly. She said it would be all right with her as far as the family was concerned, but those crazy names were something else again. However, we have never quarreled much, then or later, and that matter belonged to the future. All the while, back in Kingman, I was trying to get ahead, saving as much as I could, and looking forward to the time I could bring Merle Butcher there as my bride.

One of the activities that I got interested in first at that time was Masonry. I joined Ninnescah Lodge 230, A. F. & A. M., and still hold my membership in that lodge. I never missing a meeting. Work every office in the lodge, first being elected tiler, then junior warden, senior warden and finally worshipful master. One of the events I remember as master of the lodge was the big turnout of Masons we had back in 1918 to observe St. John's Day. The Methodist Church was crowded for the ceremony that afternoon.

A great event in my life, or so it seemed in those days, was when I bought one of the early autos in Kingman. It was for use in business as much as pleasure, otherwise it would have been outside what I could afford. It was an old-time high-wheeled Ford that caused a lot of commontion among animals on the country roads as I breezed along at twenty to twenty-five miles an hour from town to town, calling on my customers.

I remember driving my firrt car all the way to Arlington—and all the excitement it caused in the family when I drove up in triumph. We had a sort of famiy reunion, with Sister Effie frying enough chicken to feed an army. Mother sat behind the wheel—while we took a picture of the family grouped around the machine—and then she got a real thrill when I drove her around in it. I also drove it all the way to Huthcinson, where there was one person, I was sure, who would like to see and ride in it.

There are some old clippings from the Kingman Ledger-Courier that relate to that first car of mine. It was an item of real news then. The newspaper was edited by Ed Palmer, a mighty fine fellow. Everybody loved him. He had two fine boys. One of his boys, A. E. Palmer, is still living in Kingman. have some written comments by him of some of those old news stories. One story amuses me. My automobile broke down one day and soon afterward this "wreck" story appeared in the Ledger-Courier.

a new light on home work

In well equipped homes everywhere the diffused, glare-free light of an I E S study lamp is providing new light on home work, helping youngsters to do their work more easily, and get better grades, too. Lighting tests have shown that many failures were due to poor lighting conditions rather than stupidity.

Poor light, glaring light, both cause eye strain, make one drowsy, increase fatigue. Under these conditions studying is hard work. Give your children the benefit of scientific lighting for their nightly task. Visit the stores of local dealers and see their displays of I E S lamps, in table, floor and wall models

Genuine I E S Lamps bear this tag. Look for it on the lamps you buy.
